In her CAR CULTURE collection, preeminent car photographer Lucinda Lewis has gathered together more than 200,000 of her gallery quality images documenting America's love affair with automobiles and the open road.

The CAR CULTURE collection covers the entire history of the auto industry, and is comprised of vintage vehicles dating back to the beginning of the "car age," classic, prototype, and current model vehicles, plus a mélange of nostalgic period automobiles from the heyday of Route 66. Lewis has photographed the "fin-tacular" designs of the '50s, muscle cars of the '60s, exotics from abroad, and one-of-a-kind prototypes.

The distinctiveness of these photos comes from Lewis's ability to blend cars, backgrounds, and masterful lighting techniques, resulting in not merely pictures, but images that glorify these magnificent machines in uniquely "roadside America" settings.

CAR CULTURE images have a proven record at retail. Automotive accessories, housewares, tin signs, model kits, and published books have been created based on these photographs. The images are applicable to numerous categories including apparel, puzzles, wall décor, throws & blankets and more.
